FOREWORD

WE have built our Annual on the theme "Career." We have felt that nothing could be more appropriate for a school year book than a theme symbolizing the fields of work we all are now preparing to enter. We spend four years in Lake View and then go on— to further study, to the professions, to industry, or the home. Careers are ultimate goals before us all.

Dedicated to

MISS WINIFRED OLLOM

who has helped so generously and efficiently in preparing us for the careers that we are now entering.

PRELUDE

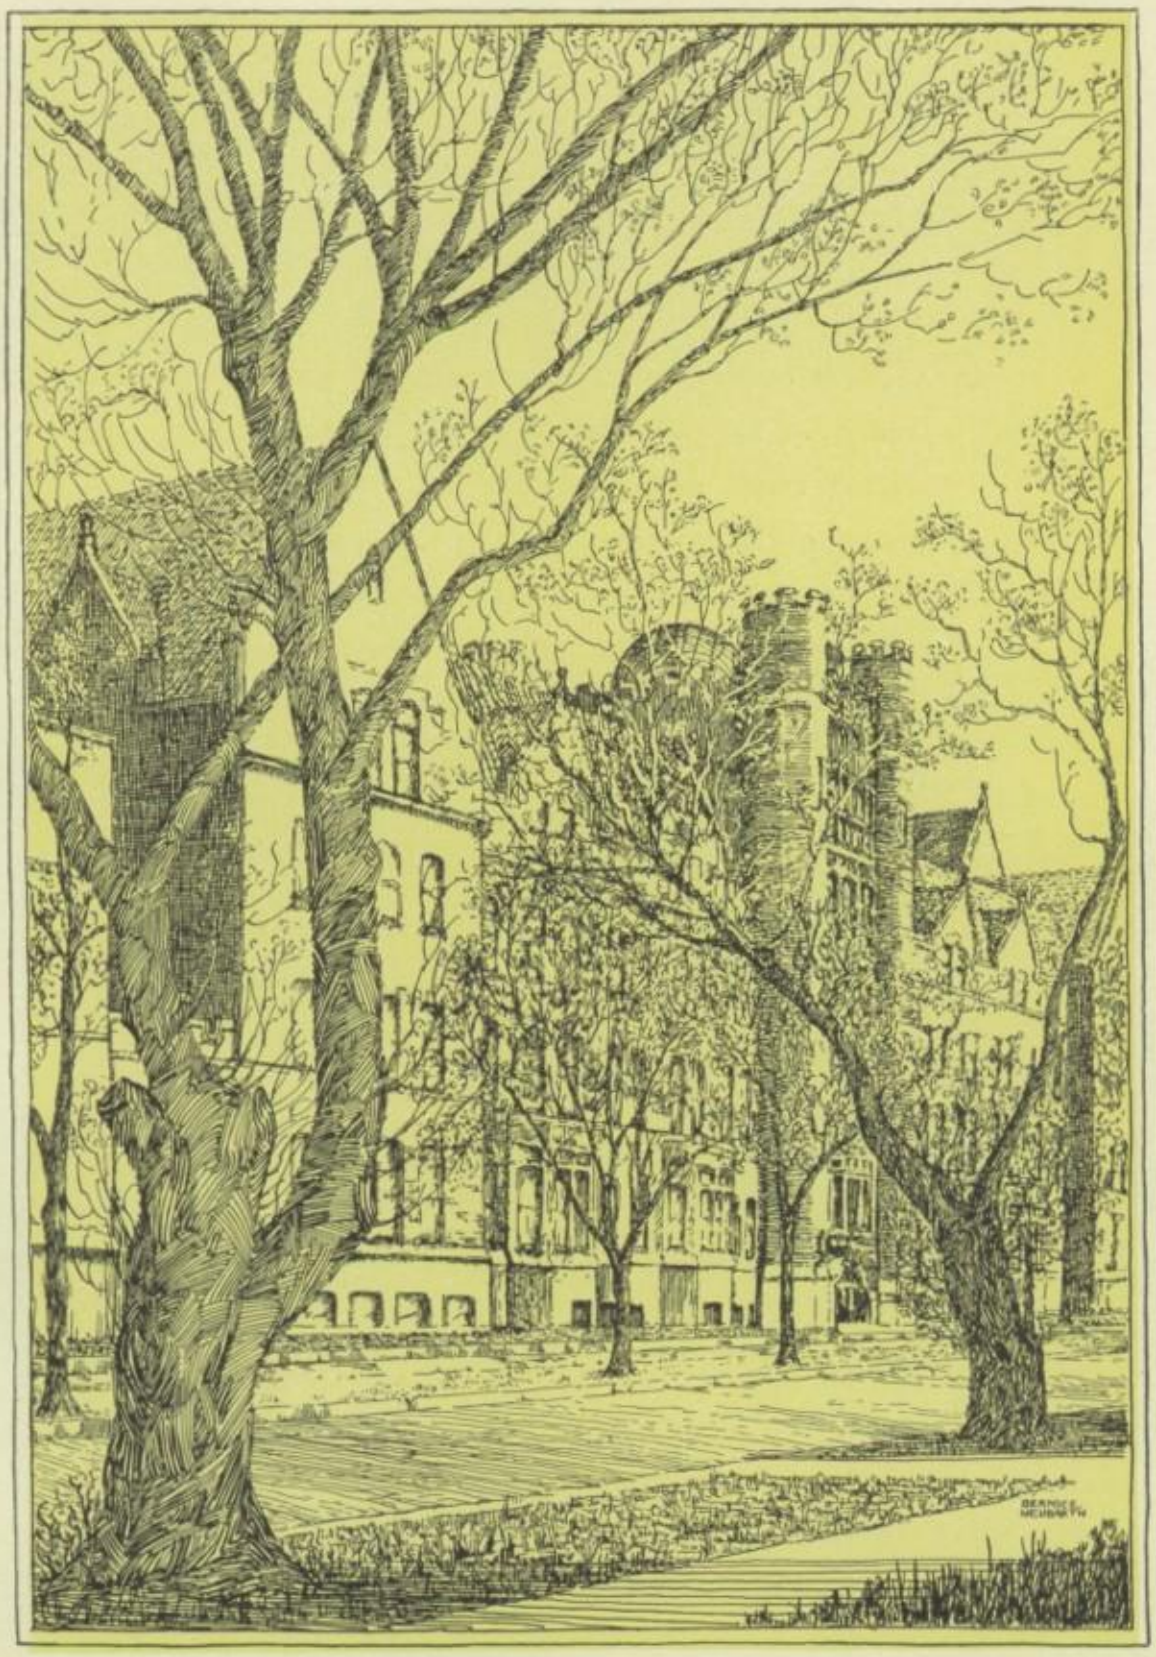
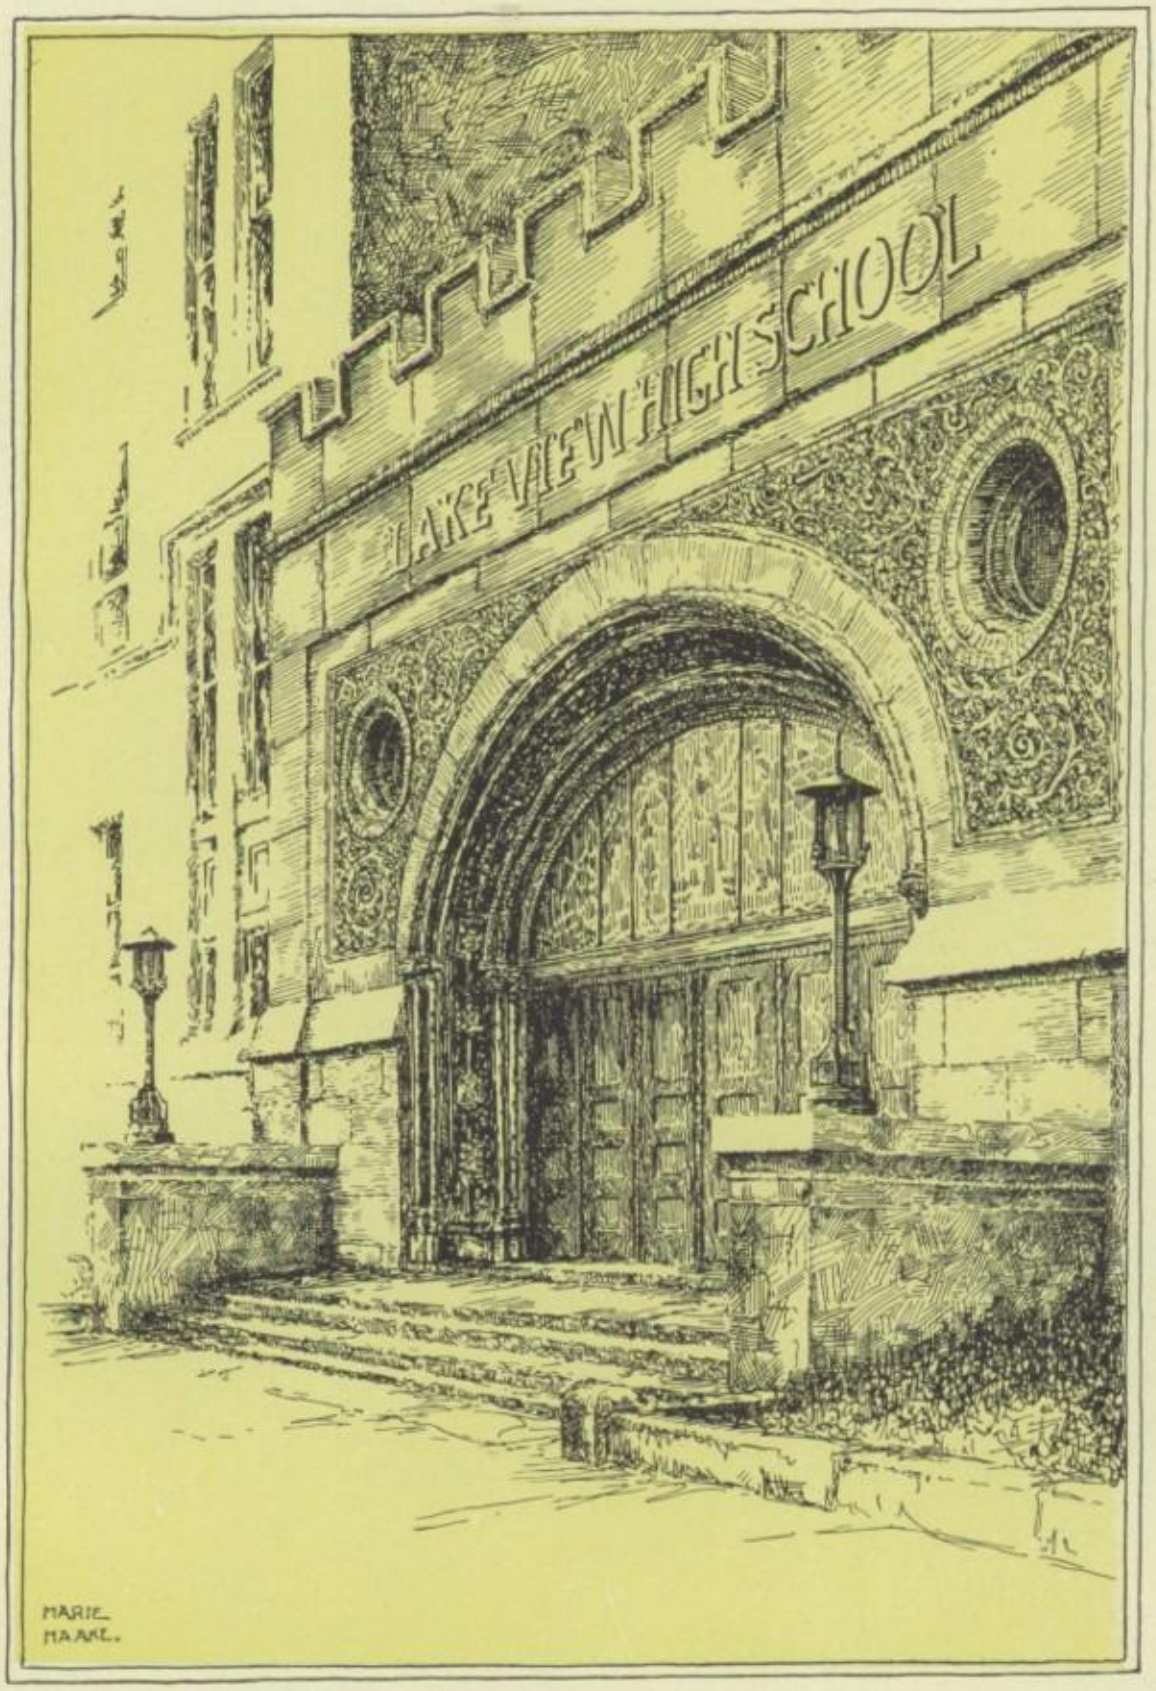
TALL towers are far reaching. . . . Tall towers whether built with dreams or with heavy stones are far reaching—how they interrupt the monotony of blue distances . . . how they disturb the tranquil moving of the wisps of clouds . . . how staunch they are against storms . . . against the wind's embrace . . . against the oblivion of grey green fog. . . . For the builders they are realizations of great dreams and for the onlookers they are inspirations . . . because they are so high—so impressive . . . because inside, youths study and because they are beautiful . . . about them only one thing is sad. . . . They can never reach beyond the limit of the sky. . . .



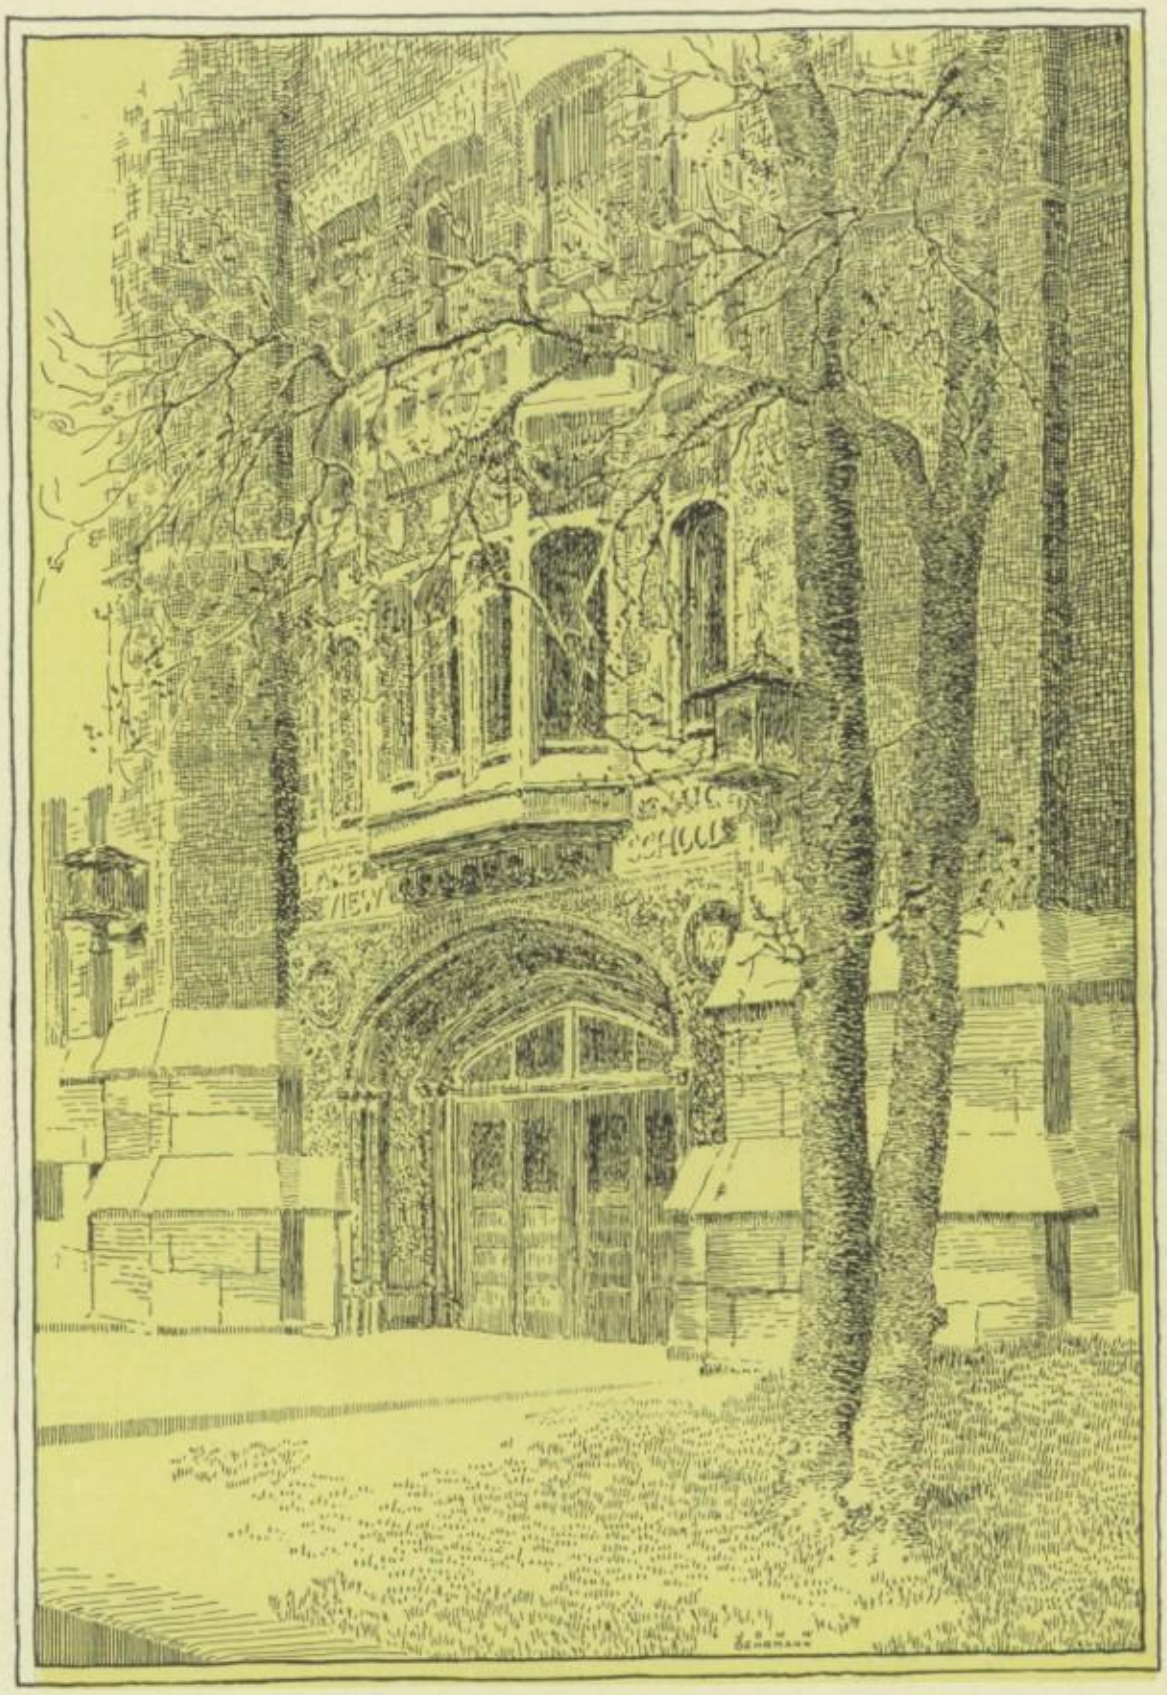
SWIFT commerce, old people, whizzing red and grey and blue motor cars . . . and aeroplanes small with distance . . . bold horses trotting before wagons of vegetables and flowers . . . young, brown faced little boys speeding on scooters . . . little girls, like singing butterflies tripping along . . . mothers with contented eyes, wheeling pink infants . . . maidens in polka-dotted dresses and youths with curling hair . . . all of them pass the doorway . . . and do not see it. . . . Inside, the student thinks and reads and learns in the silent half-darkness . . . he does not see it either . . . but it is there ever-present . . . a barrier but much more, a protection . . . doorways are fine things. . . .



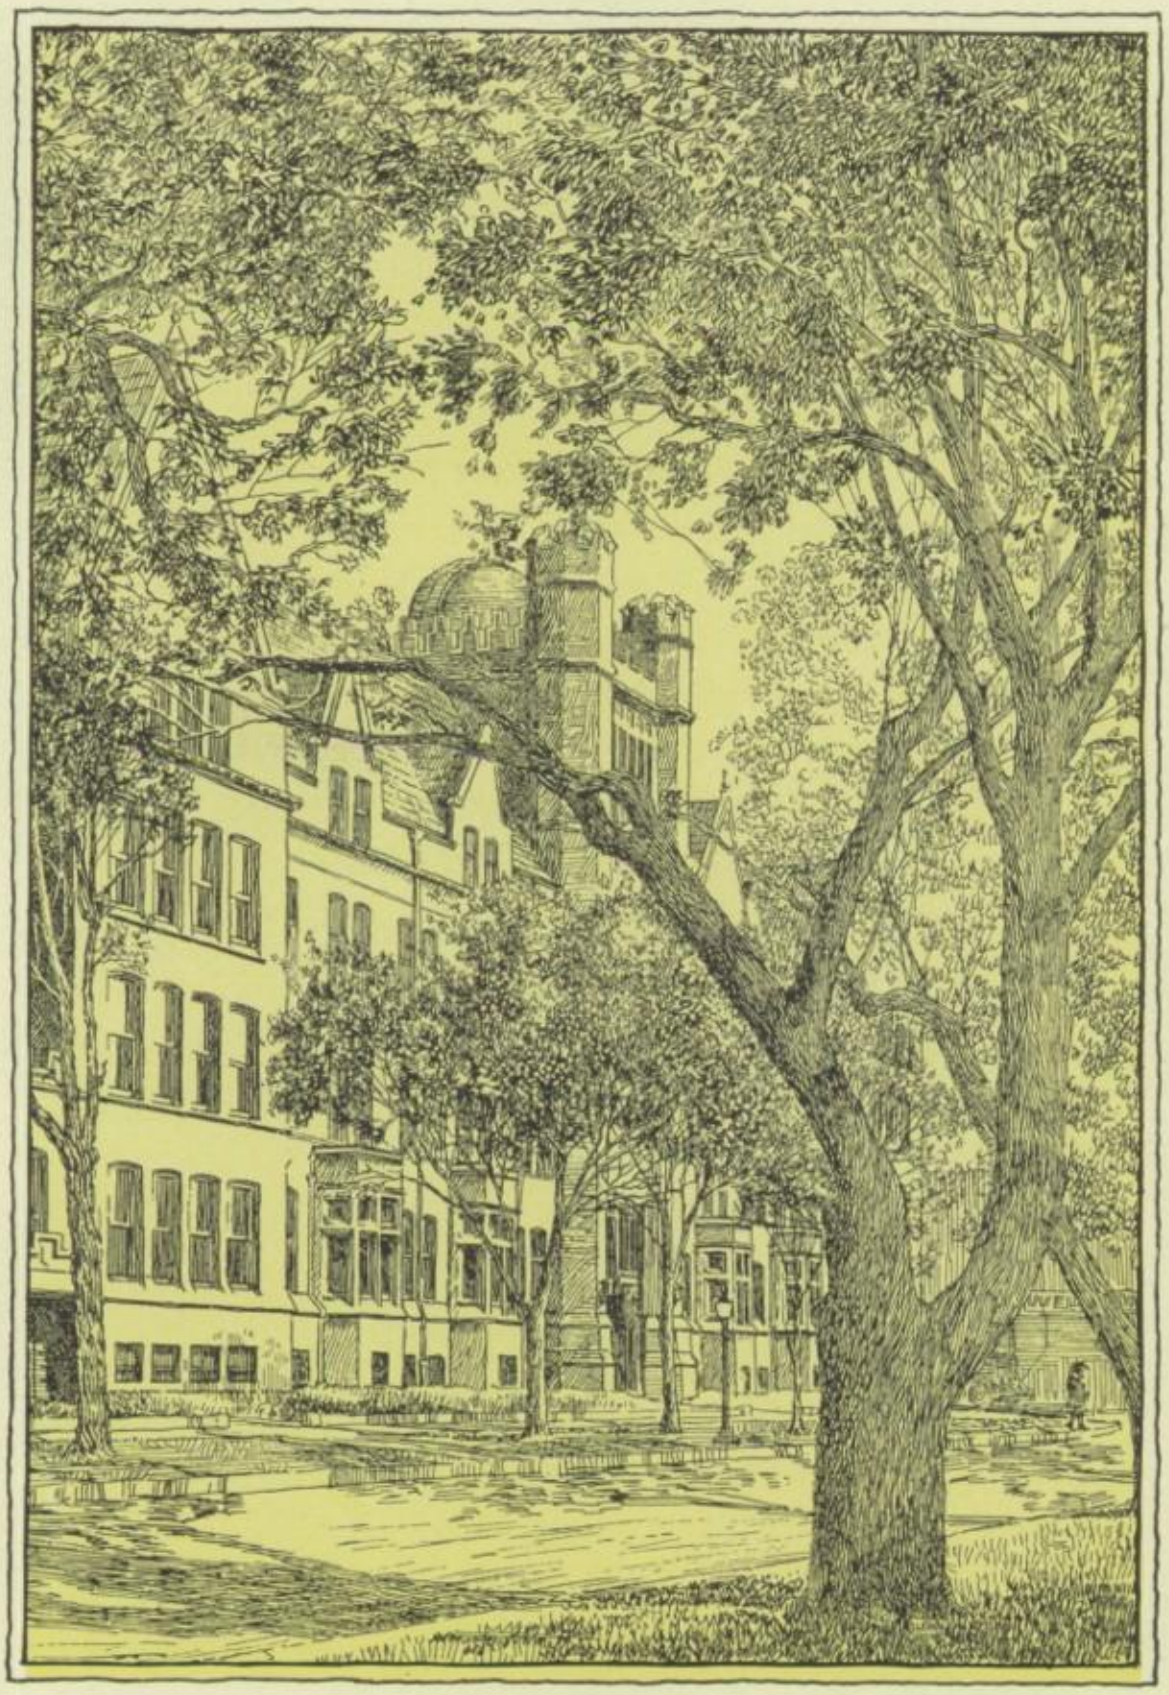
LAKE VIEW HIGH SCHOOL
MARIE
MAAKE.

IT IS a gateway on a street . . . softly darkened with the shadows of swinging green leaves and soft sunlight. It is a gateway, which, once entered, one can never leave. . . . Inside there is wisdom and truth and life . . . inside a boy may become almost a man—a great change—and a young girl a woman . . . a gateway built of strong and heavy iron . . . within are wise people who have learned and, knowing, teach . . . within wide, innocent child eyes change into older eyes. From within, curiously they peer from the doorway at the long streets—such very long streets . . . with people walking upon them . . . and softly they wish to walk in the same paths.

Best Wishes
E. V. Seisenbacher



THE long tresses of the night which are the winds may be combed in the black trees. . . . Star-tipped combs are lovely things. . . . Trees live in the day too . . . in greater glory . . . I think . . . because gleaming green leaves bathed in torrents of sun are more brilliant . . . than leaves black with the darkness of night . . . and besides, everyone may see . . . and everyone may feel the burning beauty . . . the golden energy of the flickering light . . . everyone may hear the little black birds and the little brown birds and the large red-flecked birds singing their gay chirping songs and dancing their winged dances like too-happy little children. . . .



SUDDEN, soundless tufts of snow swinging from brown tree-branches like light, white, birds . . . or sun emerging from tender clouds . . . slender, pointed, frozen things called icicles dripping from high places—roofs of houses and tree twigs and barns—white rushes of steam from nostrils of red brown horses with grey fatigue shining in their large gentle brown eyes . . . the whispering of children's feet and aged feet in the soft moistness of the snow . . . towers smothered with snow, windows blotted with snow-people aching with sharp cold . . . but inside always glowing and shelter from winds, from stinging snow flakes, from grey, dead skies. . . .

IT IS the ending—Four years of seconds and minutes and hours gone. . . . They were realities . . . now they are vague distant dreams. Four years of happenings . . . some small, some so large one cannot realize their greatness . . . friendships . . . there was a goddess with golden eyes and golden speech and golden soul . . . wasn't there once a young god, too—with a golden soul? . . . There were achievements . . . in painting, in writing and in splendid scholarship. In athletics, too. . . . There were enjoyments—sorrows too . . . and yet they were all so small—seemingly enclosed in four walls. Now there are only the walls of the world to hold us back . . . and the world is a broad place. It is the ending . . . but it is a greater beginning.

ADDED HUES

SLOWLY, softly . . . four years
Pass along . . . like silver clouds . . .
Sometimes fading . . . revealing memories,
In a picture of life . . . wrought by years,
Fashioned by time, which forever adds
Many colours.

And as we watch these shadows,
Dreams of the past . . . we see
Through mists . . . gaily colored
Deeds, tinted with sombre shades,
Recalling toil, and study,—making them
More beautiful.

We hope again . . . for a picture
Of greater art, of which our present
Sketch may be the canvas.
A glowing image of many hues . . .
Of friends, books, memories,—colours
That these four years have added . . .
With the darker tints from our pallet
Of life . . . which will make our picture
More beautiful.

—Bernice Danziger.

THE silent strength of muscles strained, white within the dark of four walls—or in freedom under the sun . . . wet, gleaming bodies emerging from square pools of green water . . . deep breathing of exhilaration . . . the sudden absurd ping of white-furred balls against tightly strung rackets, and the rapid pattering of feet upon red courts . . . the heavy force of large brown spheres flung through the shouts of crazy crowds into black rings netted with white . . . the splendid silver of rapiers driven . . . like moon shafts . . . or grey sea gulls . . . vast green distances . . . hopes and desires hidden in slender golf sticks . . . the glory of victory! the result of ambition.

AFTER faithfully practicing every afternoon for five weeks, four trackmen were selected from the squad to represent Lake View in the "Marquette Relays." This contest is a national event held every year in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is sponsored by Marquette University, and open to all high schools.

Robert Curtis, Henry Barg, Fred Specht, and Arthur Eichelkraut made up the group of four "harriers." Together with Don Barnet, Lake View's agile broad jumper, and Coach Thompson, they motored to Milwaukee early in the morning on the day of the meet, May fourth. The relay team, covered with blankets and huddled together on the field of the large stadium before ten thousand spectators, were waiting for their event to be run when it was announced that Don Barnet had won first place in the broad jump, with a leap of twenty-two feet, four and one-half inches. He had won a national championship and the boys on the relay team straightway decided that they were going to do the same. They went into the race with this fighting spirit. Curtis, the first man to run, secured a good position and passed the baton to Barg who was in third place when he passed to Specht, Eichelkraut, the anchor man, took the baton from Specht, who had gained second place, and finished first, twenty-five feet ahead of the runner-up. The school record was sixth among one hundred teams entered. The following week a loving cup and individual medals were presented to Lake View's first national champions.

The whole track team has been very successful this year. Early in the season they encountered Roosevelt, Senn, Harrison, Austin, and Thornton in dual meets. The Lake View boys were the victors by a large margin in all but one meet, that with Thornton.

Among the boys who have shown their ability as track men are: Ed Roe, the winner of the fifty yard dash in the city indoor meet and a consistent point getter in dual meets; Fred Specht, the captain of the team, who ran the quarter mile, 220, and 50 yard dashes; Henry Barg, star miler; Arthur Eichelkraut, miler and third best half-miler in the country; Ned Long, hurdler and dash man; Henry Karstens, half-miler; and Robert Curtis, quarter miler.

Coach Thompson has worked hard with the boys and deserves a great deal of credit.

BECAUSE most of its members were graduating this June the Smokers' Club decided to disband. Realizing the need of an organization to take the place of the Smokers' Club, Mr. Bowen, as sponsor, laid plans for a club to assume the responsibilities of the former group and new ones as well. With Mr. Perrine, he agreed that the president of the Commission should automatically become the chairman of the new Civic Improvement Club.

The deputies of all division rooms comprised the membership, and it was the duty of each member to do his utmost toward keeping Lake View clean. In the annual cleanup campaign, an administration board was chosen from the deputies to assist the cleanup manager in conducting the drive for cleanliness. The meetings were held on call whenever an occasion demanded immediate action.

All arrangements for the deputies' party held on April 22, were made by a committee of the club's members. Cooperation was also given the music departments in their sale of tickets for the opera and contests.

In general, the foremost aim of the club was to make Lake View's activities a success by co-operating with all clubs, classes, and departments of the school in their several activities.

Senior Girls Service Council

Sponsor . . . . . MISS SUDER

THE nineteen proud wearers of red jackets who may be seen assembled in the Dean's room any Monday during second lunch period are those girls who are members of the Senior Girls' Service Council. The ultimate purpose of the Council, which is composed of girls who are especially chosen by Miss Suder, the sponsor, is to further a friendly relationship between the underclassmen and the seniors.

During the past semester the councillors gave parties for the girls of the sophomore division rooms. Each senior invited several sophomores and acted as their senior sister for the remainder of the school year. These gatherings were held every Tuesday in the annex of the girls' gymnasium during both lunch periods.

The girls brought their lunches and the senior girls furnished the dessert for their guests. After lunch, games were played and the girls became acquainted with all those attending the party.

The councillors also performed the duties of hostesses at the teas given for the teachers every Friday afternoon in the Dean's room.

Near the end of the semester, when the girls from Ravenswood and Greeley branches visited the main building, the girls of this council acted as guides for the visitors.

THE Architectural Club of Lake View is finishing one of its many semesters spent in promoting the activities of the department. Under the direction of Mr. Ashton, the sponsor, it has grown into a group of earnest and willing members. Although the membership of the club is relatively small, it has succeeded in promoting several things of value to the members and students of the Architectural Department during the past semester.

At the weekly meetings of the club, many talks of an architectural nature were given. Technical problems, derived from them, formed interesting material for further discussion by the members.

Lake View took part in the All-City Drawing Contest held in April, and several fine drawings and models were entered. A school contest was held later, providing an outlet for some fine student talent in the different divisions.

In the latter part of the semester, the now famous semi-annual Toonerville hike occurred. This event is looked forward to each semester with a great deal of anticipation by all the members.

LAKE VIEW can well afford to be proud of the small group of students who meet together during lunch period every Monday for dramatic study. The Playe Shoppe is of a very informal nature and has a typical backstage atmosphere as its meeting place in Room 109. Miss Lynch, who, aside from being a speech teacher, is also a master of dramatics, is the successful sponsor of this group.

This semester the members have conducted their meetings more on the plan of a class than a club, and in this way they have progressed from merely giving plays to studying play technique. Each play now presented is not merely for amusement but also for the purpose of study and criticism.

A few of the successes scored this semester were: "The Doctor in Spite of Himself", a clever farce by Moliere; "The Lamp Went Out," an hilarious pantomine; and "An American Harem". Because of the lack of time the pantomine was the only play to be presented to the school. Besides these plays there were also plays given each week. These were headed by such efficient leaders as Roy Hudson, Jacob Rozen, Adele Goldman, Belle Rosenstein, Roslyn Feldon, and Selma Feldman.

WITH Mrs. Thompson as their leader, the Girl Scouts have completed another successful semester. The organization of the troop was begun as early as possible, for, naturally, there were many gaps left by February graduates. Again, the troop membership was limited to thirty-two as had been done the semester before. Merit Badge classes were organized along with the First and Second class groups; and the fact that everyone worked diligently was proved by the number of merit badges awarded at the Spring Investiture. The Craftsman class formed the last of the divisions. The Scouts working in this class brought material for weaving, leather-tooling, and sealing wax work to meetings.

Of course, as the spring term offered many fine days for lively hikes, the Scouts did not neglect plans for outdoor affairs. At least three successful hikes were taken out to Northfield, and parties were held on almost every holiday, along with weiner roasts and other jolly things.

The work and play the troop has done the past semester proves that it was well-organized; but, alas, the graduation exercises will again break up Troop 19 and many real leaders will leave. Nevertheless, the remaining scouts hope that their graduating members will visit the troop in the future, for they are looking ahead to more good times in the Fall.

LATIN! What does that word mean to you? Does it bring to mind uninteresting grammar facts, or do you picture Rome as it was in Caesar's time, the people dressed in their graceful togas and revelling in amusement of all kinds?

There are scores of interesting Latin games, which the members of this club have had the opportunity of playing and enjoying, while acquiring, at the same time, a real liking for the "tongue of tongues."

The subject was so interesting and extensive that at the beginning of the semester it seemed as if we could never accomplish the work before us. Roman plays, puns, games, riddles and the like were entertaining projects. Perhaps the most interesting was a proposed Latin paper, to be published before the close of the semester.

One of the games that has proved a favorite with the members is a Latin Verb Game similar to "Authors" employing the principal parts of verbs.

The Club met on Thursday, ninth period, in room 115. The only requirement for membership was one semester of Latin.

ALTHOUGH the Spanish Club is an old organization at Lake View it has never had a semester so crowded with successful events and diversified activities. The club has been able to accomplish much due to a change in its constitution.

The meetings, which had been occuring every week, were held once a month—thus making it convenient for everyone, and in this way increasing its membership to 120. At each of these meetings there has been something of extraordinary interest to attract the members.

The first meeting of the club was devoted wholly to organization. The business of the entire semester was then planned. At the second meeting an exhibition of Spanish curios took place in the library. Visitors from Senn, Schurz, Waller and Lane were present.

As our club had sent James Zoch, president, to address the Senn Spanish Club and Gordon Sargent and Jule Babcock to dance the tango for that organization at the April meeting, the May meeting enjoyed a return program through the kindness of Miss Vincent of Senn.

THE object of the Spanish Club has been to form a social organization built around the Spanish studies the club members have undertaken. No meeting has been considered complete by those in charge or by those attending without refreshments of some sort or other being served. This has caused some of the club admirers to insist that the club's motto ought to be "When we meet, we eat." Of course, refreshments haven't been the only things offered the members at the monthly meetings of the club for every gathering had its own novel entertainment.

A clever little comedy was enacted at the last meeting of the semester by those dramatically inclined, belonging to the club. It was entitled, "Las Ciencias Exactas," ("The Exact Sciences"), written by a well-known Spanish dramatist, Vital Aza.

The participants, under the able direction of a fellow-student, Roy Hudson, enjoyed being in the play a great deal; as much, it is hoped, as the spectators enjoyed seeing it.

The play itself dealt with school life in Spain, a subject in which all students outside of that country may be trusted to have an interest.

Thus, it can be readily seen that with the pleasant entertainments and the always enticing refreshments, attendance at meetings was most satisfactory. It is well to give the motto of the club: heaven deliver me from the man who only knows one book. The Spanish translation is above.

AMONG the many activities at Lake View, the Chemia Club is one of the foremost. It is an extremely interesting and beneficial organization. In the endeavor to instill in the minds of the members the practical side of chemistry, it stimulates a greater interest in class work.

Work which cannot be accomplished in the class period is carried on in the Chemia Club.

During this semester field trips were taken to Maxwell's Vegetarian Restaurant, at which the members were shown the importance of chemistry in the correct balancing of a diet, and a visit to the American Medical Society where the Club members were shown how indispenable chemistry is in the maintenance of good health.

The Chemia Club was divided into four groups, which were: the textile, the drug, the automobile, and the diet groups; and the remaining meetings were planned by these divisions.

Some of the entertainments consisted of lively discussions on advertising, slides on textiles, and chemical magic. Then there was a delicious model luncheon.

Mr. Smith, the worthy sponsor, desires this Club to be for the students, by the students and of the students.

TO BECOME familiar with speaking conversational French, besides the stiff class-room knowledge of the language, is the aim of the members of the French Club. New words, and a skill of speaking the language naturally is obtained by the sole use of French in all conversation.

Among the programs presented was a talk on lyric poetry, by the vice-president. The talk consisted chiefly of a discussion of one of France's most beloved poets, Lamartine. Another of the interesting programs consisted of a dramatization of a few chapters of the book "Le Grand Meaulnes," besides a gypsy dance, and the reading of some typically beautiful French Poetry.

Another of the French authors discussed was La Fontaine. The life of this interesting writer of fables was told, and some of his works read.

Besides these programs, arranged by the entertainment committee, the rehearsal of a play given for all French students at the end of the semester, made the meetings very interesting and enjoyable. These rehearsals were directed by the sponsor, Miss Buckley.

ONE of the main purposes of the German Club is to interest German students in German literature, music, and customs. These can be studied in greater detail in the club than from text-books. For this reason, one of the meetings was entirely devoted to singing of "Volkslieder," and of many modern German songs that have utilized popular American tunes with an adapation of German words. "Mir Gehts Gut" was readily recognizable as "Ain't She Sweet."

At two entertaining meetings, stereopticon slides of picturesque Germany were shown, accompanied by an explanation in German of these various scenes. A clever German play closed this semester's activities of the German Club. The student actors benefited a great deal from this study of the language and greatly improved their own conversational German; the applause of the audience indicated that their efforts had been appreciated. At the conclusion of the program came the much anticipated "Kaffeeklatsch," and what fine "Kaffee und Kuchen!"

All of these projects have been under the direction of Miss Wetzler, the able sponsor of the club. She has tried, in these novel ways, to stimulate the student's interest in the German language and people.

THIS club held its regular weekly meetings on Wednesday afternoons during the ninth period in the botany laboratory of room 111. The meetings each week furnished a pleasant hour for those who attended. A feature of much more importance was the program of constructive work that was planned for the period from April to June. This work involved the somewhat intensive survey of the entire region adjacent and tributary to Lake View High School.

The purposes of the club this semester were: to list and fix the location of the more conspicious wild plants of our district; to list and fix the location of the higher fungi or "toadstool"; and to collect and list the mosses.

A number of plant-hunting expeditions to points more distant than the city environs were enjoyed by the members. Of these trips two were to the Indiana Dunes and one to the Waukegan Moorlands. The trips were so instructive and so pleasant that every person desiring to, was invited to go with the budding botanists. The Botany Club, on the whole, enjoyed a successful year acomplishing as much and more than its members had hoped.

ANOTHER semester has passed and the Readers Club has again successfully carried out its program. The membership this year was higher than that of any preceding year, and the book discussions were keen and interesting. This club, which was formed several years ago by our librarian, Miss Schumacher, was established for the purpose of aiding pupils who enjoy good books in their reading selection. It is a sad fact to admit, but as yet we have found no boys who are interested in reading; or is it that the boys are too bashful? At any rate anyone who is willing to read books and discuss them before the club is welcome regardless of sex or scholastic standing.

The manner in which programs are to be carried on for the year is always decided upon in the very beginning of the semester. This year the members made up a list of authors containing such names as Oppenheim, S. S. Van Dine, Sabatini and Edith Wharton. A few of the books discussed were: Captain Blood, The Bat, The Green Murder Case, and New Year's Day.

LAKE VIEW Girl Reserves, founded in 1922, are a part of the international organization sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. and of the Chicago Interclub Council. Their slogan, "To Face Life Squarely," is symbolic of true Girl Reserves who create an international fellowship by promoting the same ideals and purposes.

The club is composed of about one hundred energetic girls who belong either to the Budget, Social, Social Service, Music, Membership, Publicity, or Hospitality Committees. Then, each semester the club has a theme around which the meetings are developed. This semester, because there are so many lovely and instructive books written especially for Girl Reserves, the theme "A Girl Reserve Bookshelf" was chosen.

In their blue and white uniforms, the girls sell candy at the school operas and basketball games, the proceeds of which go toward the Scholarship Fund. Settlement work is also carried on during the term.

It is a real adventure to join a group of Girl Reserves and go exploring with others who are trying to find and give the best; who are anxious to share their work and play and offer help as loyal friends in their quest—"Follow the Gleam."

Sophomore Glee Club

Sponsor . . . . . Miss Glomski

ONE of the best organized and advanced Sophomore groups is the Sophomore Glee Club. In spite of the short time for organization and work that one semester offers, this group of enthusiastic girls has accomplished much, and their sponsor, Miss Glomski, believes they merit praise.

The Sophomore Glee Club sang at the Mothers' and Daughters' Assembly and also at some regular assemblies. The selections were: a solo, "Ave Maria", by Katherine Schwab; "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly"; and a number was given by a sextet, consisting of Helga Bender, Gladys Ray, Dorothy Coglan, Alice Weiling, Grace Cecil, and Harriet Forker. This group sang "Ave Maria" by Mendelssohn; "Morning", by Speaks; "At Dawning" by Cadman; "Pale Moon" by Logan; and "Waves of the Danube" by Ivanovici. Another song, "Love Hath Wings", was sung by Grace Cecil, a member of the sextet.

Any one will agree that the above selections signify a great deal of work and that an ordinary Glee Club might be satisfied with that. Not so with the Sophomores. They immediately began work on a cantata which also proved to be a success.

Orchestra

Student Director . . . . . PETER GRUBER
Sponsor . . . . . MRS. SMITH

THE All-City Orchestra Contest, The Bohemian Girl, The Senior Drama—these are only a few of the activities in which our orchestra has proved itself efficient this year. Mrs. Smith, who is responsible for the activities and success of this organization, is the ever-patient teacher and director.

This year the orchestra is larger than it has been for a long time. There are many energetic players whose work has placed us on the top. Peter Gruber, one of the foremost violinists, has the highest honor, that of being student director.

Any day during the second, sixth, or seventh periods one may hear the orchestra practicing diligently in Room 315. One moment there comes a soft, sweet melody followed by a jolly rollicking one from the opera while later on a selection from a majestic symphony echoes through the room.

At a student assembly in April, the orchestra entertained with the following concert numbers: The Egmont Overture by Ludwig van Beethoven, and The First Symphony by the same composer. The latter was taken from one of Beethoven's celebrated collections of symphonies.

We are very proud of our orchestra and hope it keeps on growing in size and success.

A LARGE number of efficient players are members of the Advanced Girls Golf Club. They are all struggling to become second Van Wies and Colletts. They score, also, in their remarkable attendance at all of the meetings and in their unequaled co-operation which paves the way to a brilliant and active club.

Being the advanced club the aim is to set an exceptional example for the girl beginners, who probably will have the honor of a membership next year.

The programs of the meetings comprise such discussions as will be of interest and importance to all ambitious members. It is not like attending a "pink tea" as it was in the past, for the discussions are interesting and at times even heated. Several outdoor meets have been held at Lincoln Park and proved to be extremely fascinating and unquestionably gay.

Monday afternoons are most convenient for the members to assemble. The meetings are usually held in room 108. The Girls Golf Club's motto is "Play fair —fair play." It is an excellent motto to uphold, this motto of Lake View, and the girls respond nobly.

Sponsor . . . . . MR. PERRINE

THE youngest organization that Lake View boasts of is the Beginning Girls Golf Club. It was organized the latter part of the second quarter by its president; and considering the short time it had to work in, much was accomplished.

Mr. Perrine consented to sponsor the club and teach the girls golf. He started out by giving a lecture on the "Ethics of Golf." His next step was to teach putting. A trip was taken to the Mid City Golf Course and the girls practised putting there one Wednesday afternoon.

The mashie was the next club to be mastered. After lectures and demonstrations in school, the girls practised at the Ravenswood playgrounds. Since the school provides drivers, the girls practised driving in the gyms. An so on—until all the clubs were mastered.

Able student golfers, both boys and girls, gave talks at several meetings. The semester closed successfully with a clever party. This Golf Club was extremely fortunate in having Mr. Perrine as sponsor since he is both a good and patient teacher.

BASING their rules on those of a former Latin Club held in Lake View, the Special Latin Class was re-organized. A meeting was held once a month, usually consisting of a Latin play or games, and refreshments. The other three meetings of the month were devoted to reading. The junior division read from a second-year Latin book while the seniors tackled Ovid and Virgil.

The members assembled for two purposes. Some wished to become proficient in sight translation and others came for pleasure; yet the pleasure-seeking students derived benefits, while those seeking knowledge also had good times.

The club was under the able supervision of Miss Souther, the juniors meeting on Wednesday, ninth period and the seniors on Friday, in Room 302.

At the begining of the semester, a membership drive was held which resulted in a turnout of about twenty-two. Many past members came back and together with the new members helped to further the club's success. One method that insured good attendance was the fact that only regular and beneficial members might receive the club pin at the end of one semester's work, and all members wished to own the club's insignia.

HOME Economics Club has fared very well this year with a membership of approximately seventy girls. This club is affiliated with the National Home Economics Association.

During the past semester the girls have visited the "Home of Useful Arts and Sciences", and other interesting trips have been planned and carried out for the group. The club has had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Featherstone who spoke on "The Joys of Living."

At the beginning of the term some of the boys from the Letter Club gave a talk on the "Ideal Girl," and the entertainment committee gave a very successful Mothers and Daughters Supper. The usual weekly programs were interesting and entertaining, being provided by talented members of the group. Besides, a play was given at which the Girl Reserves and Girl Scouts were guests.

There was also a very successful dance given by the girls which took place May 23, in the Boy's Gym. In the early part of June, the girls gave a colorful and appropriate party called, "Farewell to Graduates."

IN FIVE of the science classes at Greeley the pupils formed clubs to stimulate interest in the subject and to discuss matters for which there was no time in the regular class period.

Each club met once a month in class time, and that arrangement permitted students who might have been unable to stay after school to attend. Therefore, all the students learned about club procedure and participated in discussions of a scientific nature.

Each class elected its own officers and chose a special name. The first hour club was called the S. O. S.; the second hour, Amyl Aceltate, (Banana Oil); the third hour did not choose a name; the fourth hour was called the S. W.; and the second hour was called the A. O.

Each group adopted a constitution during its second meeting and appointed a program committee. In the following meetings the committee arranged for debates, lantern slides, and science games. The last meeting was of a social nature.

The dues which varied in amount, in the separate clubs, were used for a party and to buy a chart for the science room.

THE Girls Athletic Association of Greeley opened up the year of 1929 by giving a welcome party for the new arrivals. The party proved very successful both in the amount of pleasure that all who attended had and in the number of new and energetic members the club gained.

After the membership drive was over, elections were held. These proved unusually close and exciting. The former vice-president automatically became president according to the usual custom. The new president hereby knows all her duties and is able to manage them capably.

During the year the G. A. A. gave many parties. All were as enjoyable and as well attended as the opening one. In the early spring when the air was just cold enough to make one feel as though one could walk and walk, several hikes were held. Many girls took this way of earning points toward the coveted letters.

This semester has found the G. A. A. even more prosperous than the preceding year. It is becoming as well organized and as efficient as the main branch at Lake View which it some day hopes to equal.

THE Greeley German Club was organized only a short time ago, and has had four meetings, one every two weeks. In the course of the meetings, short programs consisting of recitations and songs were held, and business discussions were conducted in an orderly manner.

At the first meeting, a club pin was selected; and from the reports of the members, it seems that everyone was very well satisfied with the choice of the pin. And no wonder, for it is silver-plated with the words "Greeley German Club" engraved around the sides and the initials "G. G. C." in red and white enamel in the center.

The final meeting was planned some time before the end of the semester. This gathering was carried on regularly, with this exception: all the German students of the school were present and along with other activities planned for the amusement of the guests, a German play was given.

All in all, this organization has accomplished the things its members proposed to do at the beginning, namely: to broaden knowledge and views of German life, customs, and history; and to promote a better and freer use of the German language. The organization feels that it has fulfilled these purposes in every respect and that it can rightfully be called a successful German Club.

A second club was formed in May.

THE Girl Scouts of Greeley have been very busy this semester. On March 27 the troop was enlarged by the investing of Tenderfoot and Second Class Scouts. Those who had completed necessary requirements received the Swimmer, Pathfinder, and Home Service badges.

Soon after the investiture, the news of the annual Girl Scout rally to be held at the Aragon Ballroom was received. Feeling the necessity of a new American flag, the girls decided to earn some money by having a food sale. The sale was a great success. The money earned at this event was added to the money made at a previous candy sale and used to purchase a beautiful silk flag. It soon made its debut at an assembly and was greatly admired by all.

During the latter part of the term, the Scouts prepared a radio program which they had been asked to present over WCFL. Roberta Hinegardner gave a short talk on "What Scouting Means to Me." "The Ceremony of the Scout Laws" followed the singing of a group of Scout songs.

The Scout year closes with a vacation at the Scout camps. Many Scouts will take the Timber Trail to Northern Michiman, but Juniper Knoll on the Banks of Pleasant Lake, Wisconsin, calls to our Scouts, "Come back again to camp."

IT IS the purpose of the Officers club to further acquaintance among the officers. It has been in existence for eight years. Every Monday the Officers' school meets in headquarters and the coming events are announced and discussed. The Officers' club is the sponsor of the "Cadet Hop" which is held each semester. The "Hop" this semester was held in the Salle Royale of the Sovereign Hotel on June 7.

On April 25 all the officers were present at the Dearborn Street Station to meet the Australian Cadets. Every school in the city was represented including Crane College. Lake View led the parade behind the band. Nine of Lake View's officers were present at a circus party held for the Australians a few days later.

Twenty Years After

WE WERE sitting in the show window of our auto salesroom on Michigan Boulevard watching traffic jams. Suddenly the better third fetched a great sigh from the bottom of his boots; "Boy," he said, "there's no excitement around here. All we see is accidents that aren't even mildly thrilling any more."

"That's right," rejoined the middle third, "I'd like to have some thrills and heart-throbs like I did in my school days —especially in old Lake View."

"You said it!" agreed the worst third, "I'll perish from sheer boredom if something doesn't pop up soon."

Silently we nodded our heads (no, they didn't rattle) and sighed in unison.

"I'll tell you what; let's all concentrate and then maybe something will turn up." So with furrowed brows and closed eyes we breathlessly gripped the edge of our seats and concentrated with all our might. On what? Oh, nothing in particular!

Suddenly there was a loud crash and we jumped up, hastily looking for the cause. Oh! Just another accident. As usual an old flivver had tried to climb over a truck but there was not the usual result. This time the can, which lay on its back with its four wheels feebly spinning, reminding one of a dying cockroach, had managed to smash the driver's compartment of the truck. Of the truck driver there was nothing to be seen; or heard either for that matter, proving that he must have been knocked out or at least have had his powers of speech impeded in some way.

We watched the wreckage for a few minutes but, as nothing happened, we were about to resume our concentration when the door of the Ford moved slightly.

"Might as well see what the poor fools look like," suggested the middle third, so, having nothing better to do we kept on watching. Slowly and painfully three "perpetual youths" separated themselves from the debris. They looked strangely familiar as they stood there, ruefully surveying the remains of their car and tenderly feeling the various parts of their respective anatomies. Suddenly their identities dawned on us. They were our old school friends, Gay Olmsted, Roland Gardner, and Nicholas Geary. We dashed out overjoyed at seeing some of the old bunch again.

"Hey! Drag that pile of junk off the street. Can't you see you're blocking traffic," a gruff voice behind us demanded. Turning around to see who it was we saw George O'Grady all dressed up in a policeman's uniform and Myron Gutman, Robert Hall, and Willard Evens in Police Lieutenant's uniforms lumbering toward us at a great rate in spite of their excess avoirdupois. Of course, we held sort of a reunion right there, shaking hands all around and all that sort of thing, you know.

Suddenly we heard a clatter of high-heeled shoes and around the corner came Norma Haddleton, a pencil behind her ear and an enormous pad in her hand, closely followed by Carl Ellstam with a camera over his shoulder.

"Where's the driver of the truck?" Norma asked after she had taken the names of the participants in the accident. We all looked at each other enquiringly and then began to poke around in the wreckage. Then we heard a weak voice from underneath.

"Here I am," it said; "get this can off my chest and I'll come out."

The men each took a hold wherever they could and lifted. Slowly John Gehrmann crawled out from underneath.

"My partner's under there too," he said. "If you fellows will hold it up a little longer I'll get him out."

In a few seconds he reappeared, dragging the unconscious form of Elwyn Olson. "Y' know," John continued, "Olson an' me, we were driving along peaceful like when these————."

He was interrupted by excited cries of "Save the news for me! No! I'll get it first! You will try to beat me, will you?" and down the street came a galloping crowd of reporters. There were Helen Hallberg, Geraldine Gardner, Lawrence Leithardt, and Annette Harris, all clamouring for news. As they did not seem to consider this gathering a reunion, we kept on talking to Norma.

"Why don't you come along to see the plant?" she asked. "You know 'Chuck' Evans is the editor and many of the other people there are also from Lake View." Having nothing else to do we went along. It would be pleasant to see old friends again, we thought.

We arrived at the newspaper building and passed a stern figure in gold braid, standing by the door, who, upon closer inspection, proved to be George Nordell. To two foreign looking persons who were asking for information he droned in a monotone, "third floor to the right—first floor six stories up." We recognized them as Viola Engel and Melanie Overoeder who had been in India for six years doing welfare work.

Approaching the office door we encountered Harry Engel who rattled off, "Mr. Evans, the editor, is not in, Mr. Leland Hacker, the associate editor, is not in either; nor is Miss Ruth Gans, the assistant associate editor."

To his astonishment we walked past him and into the outer office where we were warded off by a young woman with a forbidding air and a determined chin. To our amazement we recognized in this office "watchdog" our old boss, Anne Jackson. Anne told us that the editor was in conference so we wandered into the main news room.

The first person we saw there was Henrietta Emrich. "I can't see you," she said. "I've discovered a new lipstick that I've got to write about in my beauty column. S'long."

Then at the next desk we came upon Selma Eisenberg, Mildred Ely, and Violet Enders who were hastily writing up incoming news. Elsie Emmerich, with her feet resting in a wastepaper basket, was looking over their copies.

They were all so busy that we walked to the next table where Nettie Gurney, Ruth Haller, and Harriet Leef were doing a jig on their typewriter keys for championship of the office being photographed by Frank Lenner; sound by Earl Leiser.

Sitting on the next table we found Lois Erol dictating weather reports to Estelle Gembick who was to send them to the radio station to be broadcast.

We saw two office messengers running around bumping into everybody in their hurry to go places. They were Edward Gerbing and Lucille Oberwinter. Evelyn Hantover suddenly sat down in the midst of her papers on her desk and began to cry. Instantly the whole office force came running, with Lillian Harris in the lead.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

"Oh!" Evelyn wailed "my reporters haven't come back with the reports on the condition of Mayor Ray Geske's banana tree and my gardening article goes to press in two minutes."

Just then Elizabeth West and Dorothy Owen came in, their faces wreathed in smiles. "Hurray! its' going to live," they said.

"What is?" someone asked.

"Why, the mayor's banana tree, of course," they replied.

A voice (it was Chuck's) came from behind a partition. "Say, who wants to get a good murder or kidnapping story, huh?" Thord Nicholson, Katherine O'Neill, and Ruth Nordstrand went running in to see the editor.

"Well, let's see," we still heard from behind the partition, "here Thord you take this gun and shoot somebody and then write the story up. This town is getting pretty dead when you have to make your own murders."

Thord went out to get the story when in came Marcella O'Connor and Marie Haake. They stamped into the editor's private office. "Listen, you," we could hear them saying indignantly, "your paper said that we gave a Bowery Party for our friends. Well, let me tell you we gave a Nut Party and if you don't apologize publicly we'll sue you. So there! You got the names wrong. We had Leah Lapine, Dorothy Weisjahn, and Lawrence Leithardt; besides we only drank ginger ale and Ruth Lauffs and Esther Lietzow aren't dry agents; they were just masquerading as some. Goodbye," they said icily and stamped out again, slamming the door.

"Yessir," muttered Harry Leiss, "this newspaper business isn't so easy. Well, I've got to go and climb a flagpost so I can photograph a bird's-eye-view of the city. 'Bye."

"Wait a minute," yelled Mildred La Violette and Sylvia Libkin who had just come in. "We want to go along. You might fall down and then we would have something to write about. Y'know business was dreadfully dull this morning."

By this time the office was quite empty. There were a few typewriters pecking weakly over in one corner of the room. Only a confused murmur came to us over the partition of the editor's private office, so we decided to look around the building a bit until his conference should be over.

As we opened the door, Kenneth Weinsheimer who was polishing the brass doorknob, almost fell over on us. A little way farther down the hall we met Edward Wdowiak sweeping the corridors and Hazel Harris emptying the office waste baskets out into the corridors again.

From the main news room we went into the telegraph section where the long distance news dispatches are received. There were Jeanette Blum, Robert McKenney, Marie Samson, John Crews, and several men whom we didn't know, taking down the messages as they were clicked out by the sounders. One of them was writing out a sporting event from Philadelphia. "Herman Melbye knocks out Le Roy Conway in eighth round, retaining the heavyweight boxing championship of the world," it said.

This was another dispatch, "Robert Sullivan, chief gunner of the battleship 'Maryland,' during target practice off Sandy Hook, N. J., missed his target and shot the superstructure off Dorothy Spitzer's private yacht, which was passing by. Grace Swinson and Betty Meier, waitresses and Harold Cline, steward on the yacht, were injured by the flying debris.

After lingering here for a little while longer we went through the "morgue," the reference room of the newspaper. Here are kept clippings and pictures of almost every person who has achieved prominence for the last forty years. Louise Clow, a society reporter was getting "dope," as they call it, for a Sunday feature article on Dorothy Meader, society leader.

Now we came to the photographic studio where pictures for various advertisements were being made. The first thing we noticed was Kenneth Stevens, who was almost completely bald, being photographed by Robert Colvin, for the "before" part of a "before and after" hair tonic advertisement. Then he sat down at a little table and Claire Mereness, a make-up expert, put a wig on him and the "after" part of the ad was taken. In another part of the room Lucille McDonald, Betty Cole, Grace Culver, and Annabelle Davis were posing in the latest dresses from Matilda Schirmer's Paris Dressmaking Salon. 'Way down in one corner we saw another familiar face. It was Judson Samuels, standing with his arms folded and a big black cigar in his mouth, being photographed by Anders Schack. Judson was advertising the new Edward Sturm smokeless and odorless cigars.

Next we went to the engraving room. We saw several pictures taken by staff photographer Richard Boylan, lying around ready to be prepared for printing. One was of Elenore Weil, Loraine Sargent, and Anna Blutmayer standing on the deck of the Ile de France at the beginning of a voyage around the world which they had won as a prize in a beauty contest. Robert Wicker, the musical comedy producer, William Britt, and Vernon Rutter, the judges of the contest, were shown standing on the dock and waving to the girls.

The next picture we saw showed Florence Breyer, the popular politician "swaying an enthusiastic audience at Muscatine, Iowa," the caption explained. To us, however, some of those farmers in the front row looked suspiciously as if they were asleep, especially Eugene Cohen and James Michael. Ethel Schageman, Kathryn Ryan, Helen McCrillus, and Ruth Breither also prominent politically, were on the platform with Florence.

Two other pictures were from the wedding of Marion Bosworth, New York society girl, to Count de Loco of Russia, France, Austria, Italy, and points south. A picture of the whole bridal party showed that Queta Brenner, Adeline Sadleir, Dorothy Russer, and Lucy Miehle were bridesmaids.

On the other picture, of the guests, we saw, among those present those notables of the social world, Margaret Rummel, Genevieve Bolotin, Alice Symons, and Lucille Mescher.

On the other side of the room we saw Charles Steinmetz and Robert Stephenson manipulating one of the large cameras. They had a pile of drawings which they had been photographing, lying on a table beside them. Upon looking at them we found them to be some fashion plates drawn by Gertrude Meyers, Marguerite Stosskopf, and Ruth Stephens. There were also some comic cartoons drawn by Charles Coorlas.

We came now to the final step in the making of a newspaper—the presses. Here the noise is terrific. With the roaring and throbbing of these great masses of machinery going at full speed one can barely make himself understood by shouting at the top of his voice. When we first entered the press room we saw Norman Stryker struggling with an obstinate piece of machinery and Lucille Dailey, the foreman, or rather the forewoman, supervising the job. As we walked along, exclaiming with wonder at the size of the presses we met Dale McGrath and William Steffey coming up, it seemed, out of the very bowels of the machine. We exchanged greetings and tried to carry on a conversation but soon gave it up as a bad job. Just when we were leaving Dale disappeared for a moment into the press and reappeared with a copy for each of us of the edition that they were printing then.

As there were still no signs of an appearance on the part of the lofty editor, we decided to look over the latest news.

"Look at that," said the worst third, "they've been having these native uprisings ever since the good old days. You would think they could find something better to write about."

"What caused this one?" This, in a bored tone, from the middle third.

"Oh, just some fanatical old missionaries, picked up by a band of Headhunters. Say—will you look at their names! Tom Izard, Alice Scatliff and Clifford Ransom. And that isn't all. Here's a statement by the deacon of the church that sent them telling of their irreproachable records."

At this moment the better third, unable to find the article in question, grabbed the worst third's paper and began to read.

Well, if we'd been looking in the Lake re View we couldn't have found any better account of the doings of our old friends. Besides the deacon of the church who turned out to be our old friend, Alden Schmidt, we found that Ilse Ohl was conducting the column "Advice to the Lovelorn."

In another column headlines proclaimed another night club raid and a list of innocent patrons seized in the raid, followed. Among these were quite a number of old grads: Ernest Whitney, prominent lawyer; Victor Weil, manufacturer of opera hats; Holly Laws, successor to Mary Carr of mother role fame in the movies; Dr. Minerva H. Auerbach, veterinary surgeon; August Barnebl and Esther Weckerlin, co-inventors of a bounceless bottle; Bennie Wexler, sculptor; the rival women flagpole sitters, Margaret Baldwin and Doris Hussey; Emil Poklop and John Koebel, experts on the peregrinations of fleas; Edward Klier, distinguished by the title of only remaining male barber; and Arline Baber, holder of women's deep sea diving championship. Recovering from our surprise at reading so much of old friends, we returned to our papers and began to examine the theatre pages. Imagine our further surprise to see the name Herbert Hopkins advertised as "Muleteer from Afghanistan" on the two-a-day at Ida Jenné's new theater.

Down in one corner we found a tiny little article which grieved us very deeply. Kenneth Ball had broken his leg and they had had to shoot him.

On the same page in the concert announcements we noticed an interesting announcement of a chorus of famous Alpine yodelers. After what had already happened, it seemed quite natural to see the names of a few old friends among those listed. They were Alice Kirkeeide, who, in fact, was the leader and organizer of the chorus, and Viola Jennings, Louis Armer, Thomas Proctor, Gerald Keefe, and Andrew Kartman. After looking fixedly yet hopelessly first at the clock and then at the office door we returned to our papers. More large headlines called attention to a big fire that had raged for two days between the 41st and 49th stories of Rudolph Wangerin's latest ninety-floor building. As the eight stories had been completed destroyed before the fire had been checked, all the people in the upper stories had been marooned, as it were. In the list of names we recognized Felix Ponti, celebrated pharmacist—the very one who put the drug in drug stores; Shirley Jacobovitz, X-ray expert; and Louise Pipenhagen, possessor of the only existing horse. Robert Pollack's art studio was also listed with the names of his assistants, Doris Praeger, landscaper, Grace Wilkin, interior decorator and Evelyn Kester, designer. A number of establishments destroyed in the fire were The Antarctic Linen Shop owned by Ruth Klein and Dorothy Keefe; The Lester Kauffman Traveler's Bureau which had recently introduced a new rocket trip to the moon; and The Walter Aye Bristleless Toothbrush Corporation. We hoped that none of our friends had been seriously injured and discussed the possibilities of visiting them when they had been rescued from exile.

As there still were no signs of the lofty editor we returned to the newspapers and immediately noticed that Robert Ganja had won the popular vote for the handsomest hero in the silent movies while Harry Gaines placed as the most successful talking movie hero. Roy Hudson had unanimously won the place of best villian both on the silent and talking screen.

Further down the page we saw an article on the conditions of some public works. We discovered that Howard Iden, head of a department in charge of the public swimming pool for pollywogs, was being tried for negligence in testing the water. His carelessness had been discovered by Laurence Hopkins, a government inspector. The attorney for the defense was Florence Jacobovitz and the district attorney turned out to be Bernard Pollock. Well, we hoped they would get it fixed up somehow, especially for the poor pollywogs.

Further on we read of a scientific trip of exploration into the center of the earth led by Robert Kirschenbaum, famous authority on red hot and liquid stone. Other members of the party whom we knew were John Austin and Robert Plummer. Dorothy Pyle was the first woman to attempt the trip.

Still awaiting the appearance of the lofty editor we turned at last to the style section and found that a style show was to be held where the latest costumes for moon-vacationing were to be modeled. Six important designers were in charge of this exhibition, and they were Helen Kedzierski, Eleanor Applegran, Elizabeth Bach, Grace Pinocci, Elaine Wattman, and Corinne Werner.

At this point we began to doubt whether we were really reading these things or just having a touch of brain fever as a result of the non-appearance of the lofty editor and so we decided to brave the office "watch dog" again. Passing through the outer office we arrived at the all important entrance only to find the office deserted and a sign on the inner door "Out to Lunch."

Verse or Worse

SOME people say it with flowers; but as we are not a bunch of dead ones, we will say it with verse. In this feature article, we shall try to give you our impressions of these various students in a "line o' type or two."

Here goes!

Charlotte Ellen Bartels,
"Artistic is her manner and her life."

Lucille Bauer,
"Soft wavy hair, a charming smile."

Vivian Bauer,
"A rare mixture of frolic and fun."

James Brooks,

Evelyn Behm,
"A girl who has, oh, so many pleasing ways."
"He stands in the ranks of foremost men."

Jack Brown,
"The world is good, and all the people are good—
And we are all good fellows together."

Laurence Bukowski,
"My only defense is, 'What's in a name?' "

Ruth Bumgardner,
"A cheerful disposition is your only true umbrella in this vale of tears."

Gordon Bumpass,
"A liberal flow of words sprinkled with merriment."

Lucille Burkhardt,
"As quiet as a mouse, but surely one fine girl."

Meinard Burgin,
"Her friends are many,
Her foes—are there any?"

Inez Davis,
"Her ways are quiet, but silence is eloquent."

Marie Davis,
"A true woman who talks to live and lives to talk."

Bernice Danziger,
"Titles of honor add not to her worth,
Who is herself an honor to her titles."

Marion Decker,
"She walks the waters like a thing of life,
And seems to dare the elements to strife."

Harriet Dehne,
"Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy."

Howard Dobin,
"A bold, bad man—Gr-r-r-!"

Theodore Doering,
"He knows his history, but just can't say it out loud."

Marie Dombroski,
"They who are pleased themselves are pleasing."

Violette Louise Evers,
"She is pretty to walk with
And witty to talk with."

Kathryn Faas,
"The blackness of her eyes and hair set off the brightness of her smile."

Phyllis Farrar,
"Lots of pep and a good scout."

Sara Lee Feinberg,
"She has been blessed with big brown eyes,
Wherein a world of sweetness lies."

Robert Felbinger,
"Gravity is the soul of wisdom."

Irving Feldman,
" 'Red' is always master of poise,
King of verbosity, ruler of noise."

Kathryn Fellger,
"Little and lively and wholly care free,
Just what a girl should be."

Viola Gilligan,
"What mischief hides within her eyes,
What fresh new pranks will she devise?"

Elizabeth Gilrain,
"The Honor Roll oft bears her name,
Predicting for her future fame."

Benjamin Jack Gingiss,
"Repartee is the touchstone of wit."

Helen Mary Gion,
"We heard of this girl, and good work went with her name."

Margaret Edna Gleeman,
"Pretty, and clever, and full of fun;
Known and loved by everyone."

Lilyan E. Gold,

"We know her by her jolly air,
Laughing eyes and jet black hair."

Winifred Golden,
"Friends like Winnie are few Always helpful, always true."

Adele Meta Goldman,
"I would make reason my guide, hard work my path, and success my goal."

Sven Johannison,
"His deeds speak for themselves."

Irving Hawley,
"Wilt thou have music? Hark! He sings!"

Paul E. Healy,
"A quiet sort of fellow, true,—
Yet silence oft demands its due."

Kenneth Hedin,
"A chap you ought to know."

Arthur Malkes Heim,
"Now, it seems to me——."

Albert Hengl, Jr.,
"He trips the light fantastic."

Fred Herrman,
"A man admired by all for what he is."

Margaret Johanson,
"Merely Margy, an awfully sweet girl."

Alice Johnson,
"Sunny hair, and sunny laughter,
Eyes of quiet, eyes of light."

Audrey Johnson,
"A dandy girl with eyes of blue,
Good in her studies and friendships, too."

Lily M. Johnson,
"She's a loyal friend, a clever wit, and a good fellow without end."

Alma Koeditz,
"A pretty way, a winning smile,
Dressed so neat, and right in style."

Marion Kogon,
"She's full of fun, and industrious, too."

John Koistect,
"True to his work, his friends."

Richard Komarek,
"Would there were more like him."

Margaret Kopp,
"A small little girl with a great big smile, Puts pep into work, makes life worth while."

John Kott,
"He found favor with everyone. The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill."

Suzanne Lincoln,
"She's sensible and quite discreet,
With winning ways and manners sweet."

Florence Lindholm,
"She loves a prank, a good game, a jolly time, and all splendid things.
We love the sweetness in her eyes."

William Littell,
"Both polite and sincere,
He can also wiggle his ear."

Helen Lloyd,
"Would there were more like her."

Guy Logan,
"He tuned his radio to the air,
And wave lengths landed in his hair."

Eugene Logsdon,
"I never shrink at the sight of water."

Bert Miller,
"The force of his own merit makes his way."

Paula Morf,
"So full of laughter and other happy things,
That the laughter had to bubble over."

Wright Morris,
"I draw girls and other things."

Berkhardt Mueller,
"Diogenes, put out thy lantern,
For thy task is done."

Gilberta Mueller,
"Take me just as I am."

Lola Mueller,
"The will to do well."

Emmet Owens,
"Modest and true in all he does."

Sigmund Pachucke,
"His eyes are blue—deep beautiful blue;
His smile never wears off."

Gladys Palmer,
"Her greatest fault? She hasn't any."

James Palmquist,
"A jolly good fellow."

Clarence Palo,
"Speech is great, but silence is greater."

Class Will

REMARKABLE as it may seem, there actually will be a school left even though the senior class has departed. When this phenomenon was brought to the attention of the class, it, with characteristic enthusiasm, decided that the school should be left a better place than it had been found. With this inspiring purpose in mind, various members of the class have contributed their small bits as follows:

Silvia Resnikow leaves her position as president of the French Club.

Jacob Adlerblum bequeathes the floor to anyone who can argue as he does.

Resi Kranz leaves her swan dive to aspiring young natators.

Richard Jones—his soldierly bearing to coming R. O. T. C. members.

James Zoch bequeathes his sepulchral laugh to Eddie Banner to instill terror into the hearts of future opera-goers.

Gordon Nevilier leaves his Barrymore profile and his bored manner to some less fortunate under-classman.

Marion Pike—her smock to anyone who likes pink.

Irene Piegza leaves her broken violin string to anyone who needs an excuse for dodging orchestra practice.

Delmar Karlen—his ability as an orator to anyone who wishes to be a second Demosthenes.

Petra Luburich contributes her perpetual giggle.

Lynn Twitchell leaves his John Gilbert hair-cut.

Isabel Sorenson goes and the Red and White is minus one good typist.

Bertha Dulka leaves a number of dents in the gym wall as mementos of "homers" she has hit.

Theda Pierce leaves "with pleasure" the job of selling candies at operas and basketball games.

Olive Pellage departs and a pleasing memory of her sweetness remains.

Martha Granquist leaves her position as a member of the editorial board of the Lake re View to anyone who aspires to that high office.

Millicent Dozier and Belle Rosenstein leave their Damon and Pythias relationship.

Rose Fremmel leaves notes to M. V. scattered all over room 303.

Hildegarde Nagel leaves that elegant expression, "My Cow!"

Florence Wackenfeldt leaves the memory of her quietness to console various persons—mainly study-room teachers.

Robert Birkemeier leaves his position as manager of the fencing team.

Modesta Neilson and Frieda Fingerhut leave as modestly as violets at the end of spring.

Charlotte Ambler — various souvenirs in the form of gum stuck under her desk.

Samuel Eisenberg bestows his ability in Latin to some poor Junior.

Henrietta Droege leaves her pronunciation of "diction'ry."

Mary Rose Greenstone leaves her dramatic ability to future entertainers on the Senior programs.

Naomi Trudell contributes her nickname, Sue.

Irene Martel says goodbye in her babyish lisp.

Fred Bishop leaves the memory of his "fiery dome."

Ruth Winkelhake leaves the piano in 315 lonesome.

Florence Wubben leaves the memory of her "Greta Garbo" hair-cut.

Maurice Joyner leaves his reputation as a strong, silent man.

Irmelin Silber leaves the many library notices that Miss Ollom must read almost every morning.

Ruth Sebastian—her countless S's.

Warren Johnson and Andrew Papailion leave their long friendship together.

Esther Krausman leaves with her boyish hair-cut quite grown out.

Dorothy Krickl forgets her "poise"; she's tired of it.

Lynne Rosene leaves the memory of a smile of rare charm.

Mary Krynicki and Laurette Mueseler depart together, as always.

Helen Bina leaves the memory of her athletic prowess to encourage gym teachers.

Pauline Winkler leaves the games class minus an excellent captain.

Jessamine Kreuser leaves the memory of her hair of Titian shade.

Nancy Bloom says farewell to her lunch room seat near the cash register.

Verna Ford and Beatrice Anderson leave their long and interesting friendship.

Robert Hinds leaves his position as vice-president of the Honor Society.

Marjorie Nesser leaves her numerous admirers bereft of her presence.

Carol Shafer—the memory of her long earrings.

Dorothy Silverthorne leaves the dancing class quite desolate.

June Tucker leaves the memory of her wise-cracks.

Bernice Neubarth leaves her artistic inclinations to future members of the art staff.

Melvin Johnson leaves the wave in his hair to any straight-haired individual who would like it.

Charles Holmes leaves "sissy" roles in operas to anyone brave enough to try them.

Judith Marshall leaves her dimples to any girl in need of charm.

Alice Carnes leaves her coaching ability to anyone who has a friend requiring help in history.

Lois Hoffman leaves her position as president of the G. A. A. to Dorothy Wolflick.

Jacob Rozen leaves Ye Playe Shoppe to look for another president.

Glenn Vesceles hopes that his yellow sweater and bow-tie will not wear out soon.

Dorothy Maier leaves her sense of the ridiculous.

Louis Pfaff prepares to develop his ability as a salesman.

Leslie Lenox Chiville, Jr., leaves his name to anyone big enough to live up to it.

Frank Mayr gives up his position as a competitor of the Sphinx to anyone who finds talking too great an effort.

Arthur Eichelkraut thankfully leaves his position as chairman of the Picture Committee to next year's "long-sufferer."

Marie Seiferth and Chester Martin leave—together.

Wilma "Billy" Markley scatters mem'ries of blue eyes, dimples, and great work on the "Commish."

Elsie Zimmerman speeds away in her new Chrysler.

Fred Specht vacates his job as "Chief Bouncer" of the Senior Class.

Marie Wrase leaves her quiet dignity to anyone who feels the need of it.

Emery Bergfors leaves his forbearing silence in U. S. History class as a memory to Miss Monahan.

Gordon "Scotty" Anderson leaves the treasury not a whit depleted—"Hail to the Scotchman!"

David Bernstein feels that his "magnificent physique" would delight the souls of admirers of "he men."

Alexander Shedden leaves the floors of his classroom littered with tiny bits of paper.

Frieda Lojewski leaves behind her a giggling echo.

Elise McBean leaves—with joy.

Elmer Abendroth—his shell-rimmed glasses for some of our other hard workers.

Ray Parsons contributes his "smart sayings" as an example to other funsters.

Dorothy Parkin leaves the echoes of her soft voice in the halls—may they lull the hall-guards to sleep!

Fairley Durr bequeathes the lovely soft waves in her dark hair to Frances Pizzo.

Bertha Dyko bestows her wide, red leather belt on anyone with a good waistline.

Marie Herzog is willing to leave her brisk manner to some person with an inclination towards laziness.

"Herb" Grossman—his prowess as a golfer; and his "marcel wave" to some unfortunate chap with straight hair.

THE RED & WHITE

Kirby Greenup's soft voice is left by him to delight the ears of teachers.

Miriam Burns leaves to less fortunate ones her great experience in Florida moonlight.

Helen Dooley leaves mem'ries of her great activity in G. A. A. affairs.

Evelyn Langinger leaves her place as violinist in the orchestra vacant.

William Murphy employs his used toothpicks to mark the ways where he has passed.

Elizabeth Ronzheimer wills her band and long curls to some sister who is too impatient to grow out her hair.

Mary Foley offers her finely-drawn eyebrows to some poor girl who has too heavy ones.

Elnora Groner bequeathes her romantic first name to anyone wishing to "crash" the movies.

Like the setting of the sun, Lillian Grossman leaves our halls dark and dreary.

Dorothy Ritchie entrusts her "big-moment" to the tender mercies of summer school instructors.

Lyle Ruh leaves as evidence the fact that a blush is becoming when combined with fair hair.

Vernon Schwaegerle leaves his great ability as a dramatic actor as a memory to room 407.

Sonia Anderson contributes her speed in dictation to help slower classmates.

Marguerite Forsyth bestows her dimples and brown eyes on some less charming "little sister."

Mildred Charles departs with several Efficiency Awards for her typing.

Joseph Chvalovsky leaves his peppy dancing to some poor under-classman with clumsy pedal extremities.

Joseph Hindman—with a great dislike for Gibsons and a vow of vengeance on all photographers.

Alice Hoegner wills her quiet smile to some victim who has to calm a hall-guard in a hurry.

Roy Anderson leaves his place as French horn player in the band to some aspiring candidate.

Herman Kroll leaves a trail of broken hearts behind.

George Kubinsky—the sunshine created by a perpetual grin.

Eunice Christenson leaves her nickname "Tootsie" to anyone who fits it as well as she does.

Ralph von Rautenkranz leaves his name to anyone searching for a "classy monicker."

Theresa Waldheer—the sparkle in her brown eyes.

To any aspiring vamps who attend our school Margaret Walter bequeathes her eyes.

Jeanne Hester wills her great abilities as a collector to future room deputies.

Bernard Hirsch leaves his good violin playing and his brilliant chess mind to any interested genius among under-classmen.

Paul Firring is taking his marvelously light hair with him, but he and Fred Butts, Jr., leave their posts on our "champ" golf team for others.

Winifred Gruening leaves to our teachers her gentle smile and her never-failing good humor. They'll need the latter!

Peter Gruber is willing to give up his post as chief-wielder-of-the-baton in our orchestra to some other genius.

Ruth Johnson wills her secret of how to have blonde hair without peroxiding it to any would-be "lightheads."

To anyone who feels that strongly-marked eyebrows will lend him the dignity he lacks, Leo Berman leaves his.

To some of her younger sisters in the lower classes Janette Betts gives her great affinity for West Pointers.

Ernest Beutler has acquired the art of being gracefully indolent and he leaves it for anyone with similar inclinations.

Ulma Durden keeps the memories of the southern home from which she came.

Milton Eberhart leaves his places in the R. O. T. C. and in Miss Monahan's seventh hour class empty.

Helen Filerman leaves to future "Stenos" the example of her two years' struggle in Stenography.

Foreword

THE School year is drawing to close. Another year has passed. You who are graduating are looking eagerly forward to see what life has in store for you.

Those to remain, are planning for next year. Everywhere there is evidence of change. A child's toy nowadays must move, have life, be able to run or fly. He is content with no other.

Just so life must move, change, improve. Business changes, our neighborhood is changing, our advertisers, many are old but many are new. New firms, new names, new types of service. Let's see what these are. Read for yourself.

These are the days of partings and separations. A glad time and a sad time for all.

What more appropriate memento of you can there be than a lovely photograph of yourself. In years to come, they carry a very special significance and each day increase in value.

THE GIBSON STUDIOS

78 E. Washington Street

Chicago College of Dental Surgery

Dental Department of Loyola University

LOYOLA University College of Arts and Sciences offers the required pre-dental college year, part of the work being given in the dental building, the Chicago College of Dental Surgery, and part in the downtown college, 28 North Franklin Street.

In addition to the prescribed subjects the course offers two subjects of a dental nature which will enable the student to enter the four-year dental course with thirty-two semester hours of college credit.

This course has been especially designed to give the training of college grade which experience has indicated will supply the necessary foundation for the proper study of dentistry.

The next session will open October 1, 1929.

A TRIBUTE TO LAKE VIEW LOYALTY

ANOTHER MILESTONE in the lives of loyal men and women of Lake View—The Red and White of the class of 1929. It stands well up among great Lake View accomplishments — a fitting tribute to the school — and to the ingenuity, loyalty and industry of those whose labors helped to build it.

Staff members will experience a great deal of satisfaction and pride in such successful culmination of their work. The Manz Corporation shares in this pride, as it has been our privilege to make the engravings for The Red and White.

For sixty-two years Manz has developed — until today it is the largest complete printing establishment of its kind in the country. Here everything required for the complete printed job — from Idea to Finished Product — is produced under one roof.

For years we have been cooperating with student staffs and faculty advisors in the preparation of year books. They have found it profits them to take advantage of Manz creative service in the initial stages of the work.

Teacher, rushing into the newspaper office—See here, you've published an announcement of my death by mistake. That's got to be fixed up somehow!

Editor—Well, we never contradict anything we have published, but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll put you in the births column tomorrow and give you a fresh start.

ANOTHER FORD STORY

While Firestone, Edison, Ford and Burroughs were touring, a light and a a tire on the car went bad. Mr. Ford went into a store and said to the merchant:

"What kind of lights do you have?"
"Edison," replied the merchant.
"And tires?"
"Firestone."
"You may be interested to know that Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone are out in my car, and that I am Henry Ford."

As the merchant was putting on the tire, Mr. Burroughs, who was well adorned with white whiskers, leaned out of the car, and the merchant, looking at him with a grin, said:

"If you tell me you're Santa Claus, I'll crown you with this wrench."

CANNY MAC

McIntosh, the proprietor of a corner confectionery shop, was the proud owner of a new cash register. One day an old friend came in and bought a five-cent bar of candy. He noticed that McIntosh instead of dropping the money into the drawer, slipped it into his pocket.

"Why not ring it up?" the friend asked. "You'll be forgetting it."

"I'll nae forget it," replied the Scot. "Ye see, I keep track in my head till I get a dollar, an' then I ring it. It saves wear-r an' tear-r on the machine."

THE DIFFERENCE

The difference between the man with $500,000 and the one with only $5,000 is that the former goes to the country in the Fall to see the "leaves turn"; while the latter has to stay at home and "turn the leaves" on his employer's ledger.

NOTHING INSIDE

The stout lady on the scale was eagerly watched by two small boys.

The lady dropped in her cent, but the machine was out of order and only registered 75 pounds.

"Good night, Bill," gasped one of the youngsters in amazement, "She's hollow!"

MUST HAVE BEEN WHALES

Jones came back from his vacation proud of his bulging muscles.

"Look at these arms," he said.

They were certainly in good condition. We put it down to rowing, but Jones withered us with scorn.

"Rowing be blowed," he snorted. "I got them pulling in fish."

Mary: "How are you getting along with your Greek?"

Lou: "Now, leave my boy friends out of this."

AND THEN—

The new stenog looked like a million dollars. Class was written all over her. The office force in accord acclaimed her "Some Dame." Then she opened her velvet lips and said to the office boy, "Say, Bozo, ain't there no carbon paper around this dump?"

ETHIOPIAN EXAGGERATION

Jeanette Flood — a flood of reminiscences of happy days spent at Lake View.

Gladys Fleig leaves behind a string of ah-a-er's collected from her various history recitations.

Jerome Goldstein leaves memories of his hair and eyes to his fellow R. O. T. C. members.

To those who follow, Mildred Nelson bequeathes her ability to perform popular dances.

Jennie Gratz leaves her friendship with Lorraine Sargent.

To light-haired under-classmen, William Nelson offers the consolation that blond hair looks very well with the khaki of an R. O. T. C. uniform.

Margaret Peterson contributes the light of her silvery-blond hair to cheer our dark halls.

Marie Rohenkohl leaves a charming blush at the mention of brown eyes.

Margaret Roeschlein leaves her beautiful smile and her ability to wear clothes to any aspiring fashion model.

Charles Andersen departs still in possession of his habit of deep silence whenever Mrs. Josaphare called on him to recite.

Elizabeth Williamson bestows her virtue of being easy to get acquainted with, on some lonesome soph.

Leila Richter leaves with several "Scalps."

Albert Hogue departs with a roll of drawings under his arm.

Norman Phillips leaves his clarinet—not quite as good as new.

Helen Bergren embarks upon a business career.

Bettina Kaplan and Vera Schuett are off for Crane.

John Rhoades departs from the R. O. T. C.

Harriet Neuman is bound for balmy Florida.

Grace Krueger leaves—quietly.

Ralph Wortman now finds the Soccer team deprived of his presence.

Charles Gunderson, Carson Schuler and Alford Johnston leave—well, they just leave.

Donald Majerus will try to forget his nickname—Ichabod.

Lucile Lorr and Margaret Lambert depart thoughtfully.

Robert Martinson leaves with his teachers the pleasing memory of the perfect pupil.

Maurice Johnson tells the Astronomy Club to gaze at stars without him.

Hyman Kanes leaves his habit of talking out loud in classes to others who wish to become "popular."

Oscar Herz, Roger Cain, and Eugene Heuerman depart with a display of joy.

Alan Burnett goes on, joyfully clutching a bronze honor pin.

Anyone in need of "It" can appeal to Carol Cecil for the curly "sideburns" she is leaving.

Clara Jurgens is waiting for some "dishwater blonde" to come and claim the golden, very golden hair which she is leaving as a gift to the school.

Le Roy Krein is leaving the school minus one wily orator.

Hubert Nelson leaves the memory of a fellow who was always jolly.
